General Election Update 6

Get Out and Vote!

Thank you to the hundreds of apartment owners around the country for all your work over recent weeks in contacting your local candidates.

Over two-thirds of the candidates in the election have been contacted by owners of defective apartments and this will have helped to solidify the commitments made by all parties in their manifestoes.

From next week – once all the results are in – the Construction Defects Alliance will start making contact with those involved in negotiating the next Government. And we will be asking you to contact your new TDs to remind them that we're looking for their active support in the next Dáil.

However, we need to remember that polling day is tomorrow and voting takes place between 7am and 10pm.

Please make sure you vote and get everyone you know to do the same.

As the saying goes, 'it's only the people who turn up who get to make the decisions'.

Thanks again for all you've done in recent weeks – the next episode in the campaign for redress for owners of defective apartments is about to begin.
